“As Uranus steps forward on the terra firma of Taurus, it seems a good idea to look at the cranky fella’s underbelly to see what agendas he harbors. It does seem that he impatiently wonders why those living in this world... or any world in the solar system he influences and inspires have not yet figured out his new agenda. Let’s look under the hood of Uranus.

Uranus is not an entirely speedy fellow in his revolution around the Sun. Eighty-four years continues to exceed the median data of a human’s life. Generally he spends seven years in a sign, integral within the proverbial seven-year itch. He grasps that it takes those dealing with a mundane plane significant time to lock onto an insight virtually under their noses. He understands resistance, stubbornness, bitchiness in the face of change. He realizes that change requires a person to transcend the dimensions of their comfort zone. Still, he bears annoyance at those who resist timely evolution when the writing is on the wall. When change signals, consciousness must catch up... which starts with a shift of conscious. ‘Attention,’ says Uranus, ‘Shift happens. Get on with it.’ ”*
