“Neptune Played a Leading Role”

A dreadful and mysterious event occurred in March 2014 when Malaysian Airlines flight MH370 simply disappeared, challenging our flimsy, yet utilitarian, notions of dependability and security from which most of us are tacitly suspended while flying. Spurred on by this unease, we are reminded that Nature abhors a vacuum. So, in the absence of evidence – especially the kind that is vitally required in weighty matters - we rush to fill in the blanks. Thus, theories abounded: the crew and passengers were lost in the ocean, and also being held captive on an island, or perhaps, in Thailand; the loss simultaneously indicated terrorism, pilot chicanery, or equipment malfunction.

Terms like mystery, ocean, disappearance, and confusion sound a familiar theme for astrologers. Yes, as we'll see, Neptune plays the leading role in timing the life cycle of this tragic story, especially after including two vitally important eclipses. Astrology strongly suggests that resolution of the MH370 issue may be at hand in the next few months. And, after concluding our investigation of the MH370 event, we'll see - perhaps surprisingly, at first – that other familiar news stories piggyback on the same timeline.

“Three Phases of Human Development Through the Lens of Astrology”

Since the formation of the first human collectives, people have been faced with at least three monumental challenges in life that serve as milestones of personal development; becoming secure in their personhood within the family unit, partnering with others in cooperative endeavors, and becoming a productive and dependable contributor to the larger social group. By synthesizing the insights of astrologers with the observations of behavioral scientists, a coherent system is established in the birth chart where all three phases of personal development are found to operate interdependently, and can be considered according to a set of observed rules.

Join us in considering the houses through a slightly different lens as we explore their application to the common concerns of modern life.

Getting to Know Bill Nastasiak

Bill Nastasiak first became interested in astrology in late 1969 when a relative gave him a copy of Edgar Cayce's biography, "There Is A River." In the second part of that book, Cayce suddenly expands the scope of his readings beyond simple medical diagnoses to include references and material about metaphysical subjects, including astrology. This immediately led Bill to a lifelong interest in the subject. A few years later, he took lessons from a student of Eugene Moore, and continued an avid interest thereafter. Currently, he is a student in Noel Tyl's Master's Course.

Bill has attended at least nine major astrology conferences and three long-weekend intensives for Noel Tyl's students. He holds a BS in Organizational Behavior, and is a retired consultant to major organizations throughout the country on topics such as training, teambuilding, leadership, strategic planning, facilitation, etc. He's also been a mediator in the Maricopa County Justice Courts, as well as within the Alternative Dispute Resolution Program for county employees.

Nastasiak has served on the ASA Board as Program Director, Treasurer, and President. He lives in Phoenix with his wife, Mimi, and their dog, Buddy.
